Here's a free bus ride for those of you'll who want to explore Rajiv Gandhi Salai, as Old Mahabalipuram Road is officially known.

As part of Madras Week celebrations, Doshi Housing has launched 'OMR OMG Express', a free AC bus service for those who are keen on learning about the historical significance of OMR. The service will in operation for one month, starting on August 24.

The free shuttle service will operate from Madhya Kailash to Sholinganallur with five stops between the two destinations – Tidel Park, SRP Tools, Perungudi, Thorapakkam and Karapakkam. Around four trips will be made every day, from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur, to Madhya Kailash and vice versa. The first trip will start at 9.30 a.m. from Aavin Dairy, Sholinganallur.

According to a press release from Mehul Doshi, director, Doshi Housing, the free bus trip will help create awareness about the history and development of OMR and surrounding areas. A booklet containing interesting facts about OMR and an audio presentation, put together by historian V. Sriram, will be made available to the passengers.

Thanks to the hype about it being the IT Expressway, the fact that OMR has been a knowledge centre of Chennai almost since Independence is forgotten, says V. Sriram.

"There is centuries-old history in some of the villages that it now connects, all of which are now part of Chennai. The OMR area consists of 480 IT companies, 132 hospitals, 160 colleges, 330 restaurants, 55 banks, seven gas agencies and one golf village. Some of the notable landmarks on OMR are Buckingham Canal, The Roja Muthiah Research Library, MS Swaminathan' Research Foundation, Asian College of Journalism, Institute of Mathematical Sciences, NIFT, Aavin Dairy at Sholinganallur, Voluntary Health Services and Central Polytechnic Campus."

HISTORY NARRATED: The month-long ride, organised by Doshi Builders, will inform passengers of the historical importance of significant buildings on the Old Mahabalipuram stretch

V Sriram. Visuals of the significant places on the stretch would be played along with the voice-overs.

"It is only today that the OMR is known for the IT boom but the area was once known for the development of academics," said Sriram. He added that some of the oldest educational institutions in India were started along the stretch — for instance, Central Leather Research Institute, Film and TV Institute, the Trade School, Institute of Printing Technology and the 102-year-old Central Polytechnic College.

"OMR is a historical stretch with a rich past albeit unknown, and it shot into fame only after the IT boom," he continued. He added that the MGR Film and TV Institute was founded in 1945, and is much older than the FTII, Pune.

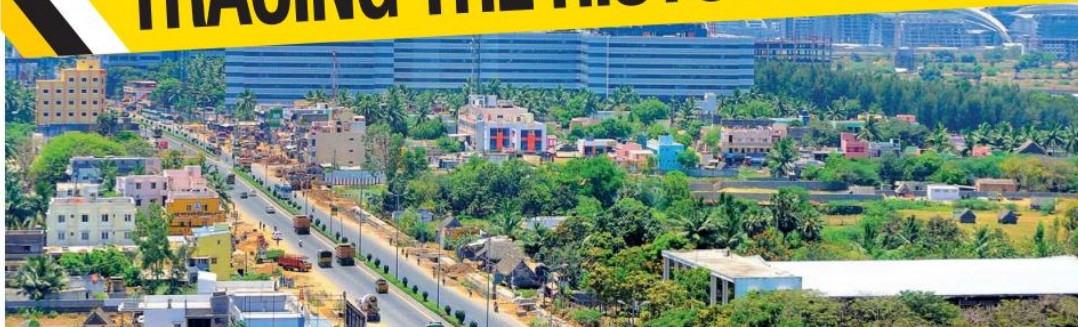

Anyone can hop on the bus, available seven days a week for a month starting August 24. The shuttle service will have stops at Tidel Park, SRP Tools, Perungudi, Thoraipakkam, and Karapakkam. Around four trips will be made every day from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur to Madhya Kailash and four return trips, with the first trip starting at 9.30am from Sholinganallur.

"The development of areas around OMR has been tremendous after the advent of IT boom. The idea of organising this free bus trip is to create awareness about the history and development of OMR and surrounding areas, which has not been recognized so far," said Mehul Doshi, Director, Doshi Housing. The bus will be flagged off from Madhya Kailash at 10.30am.

TRACING THE HISTORY OF OMR

It was a cheerful day for those who took a ride on the 'OMR OMG Express', which was flagged off on August 24. The daily commuters, who have been travelling from Old Mahabalipuram Road (OMR) to different parts of Chennai to earn their living, were quite excited about this free AC bus service, which will ply the route till September 24.

This service has been organised as a part of the Madras Week Celebrations by a city-based builders. While the bus will primarily cater to those whose workplace is in the IT corridor of OMR, Chennaiites and tourists who are interested in knowing the historical importance of the stretch can make use of its service.

Mehul Doshi (director of his eponymous building firm) says, "The development of areas around OMR has been tremendous after the advent of IT companies. The idea behind organising this bus trip is to create awareness about the history and development of OMR and its surrounding areas, which has somehow not been recognised so far. A booklet containing interesting facts about OMR and an audio presentation, put together by Chennai historian V Sriram, will be available to the passengers so that they can enjoy and understand the importance of the OMR stretch."

The free AC bus shuttle service is operating from Madhya Kailash to Sholingnallur (OMR) with five stops in between — Tidel Park, SRP Tools, Perungudi, Thoraipakkam and Karapakkam. Around four trips are made in a day from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur to Madhya Kailash and four return trips from Madhya Kailash to Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur. The trips are running seven days a week and in an hourly frequency. The first trip on August 24 started at 9.30 am from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur.

V. Sriram, city based historian, said, "In all the hype about it being the IT ExpressWay, what is forgotten is that OMR has been a knowledge centre of Chennai almost since independence. It has been home to several low profile centres of excellence. It also boasts of centuries-old history in some of the villages that it connects, all of which are now parts of Chennai."

The OMR area has 480 IT companies, 132 hospitals, 160 colleges, 330 restaurants, 55 banks, seven gas agencies and one golf village. Some of the notable landmarks are Buckingham Canal, The Roja Muthiah Research Library, MS Swaminathan Research Foundation, Institute of Mathematical Sciences, NIFT, Aavin Dairy, Voluntary Health Services and Central Polytechnic Campus. The shuttle service will get the public aware of these amenities at the OMR, added the historian.

Free AC bus service on IT corridor for a month

● Express News Service

A free AC bus service has been started by Doshi Housing called the 'OMR OMG Express' for people employed on the IT corridor there and anyone else who is interested in the historical importance of OMR. The service will be operational for one month from Thursday, 10.30 am onwards.

Bus route

The free AC bus shuttle service will operate from Madhya Kailash to Sholingnallur (OMR) with 5 stops in between – Tidel Park, SRP Tools, Perungudi, Thoraipakkam and Karapakkam.

"In all the hype about it being the IT Express Way, what is forgotten is that OMR has been a knowledge hub of Chennai since Independence," said historian V Sriram. "It has been home to several low profile centres of excellence and also boasts of centuries-old history in some of the villages that it connects, all of which are now parts of Chennai. It has 480 IT companies, 132 hospitals, 160 colleges, 330 restaurants, 55 banks, 7 gas agencies and one golf village."

About four trips will be made in a day from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur to Madhya Kailash and four return trips will be made from Madhya Kailash to Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur. The trips will be seven days a week on an hourly frequency. The first trip will start at 9.30 am from Aavin Dairy, Sholingnallur. Even non-working tourists can take advantage of this service.

"A booklet containing interesting facts about OMR and an audio presentation will be made available to the passengers to understand the importance of OMR," said Mehul Doshi, director, Doshi Housing.

Madras Week celebrations reach OMR; free heritage ride on offer

CHENNAI: Ask people about what they think of the IT Expressway, most of them will talk about the tall buildings and the million-dollar businesses that happen inside those buildings. However, OMR has much more to it than that and people now have the chance to understand the relevance of the stretch better.

As part of the Madras Week Celebrations, Doshi Housing is launching 'OMROMG Express', a free air conditioned bus service for people employed on the IT corridor of OMR, and for those who are interested in knowing the historical importance of OMR.

The bus will start from Madhya Kailash to Sholinganallur with five stops - Tidel Park, SRP Tools, Perungudi, Thoraipakkam and Karapak-kam. Four trips will be made from Madhya Kailash to Aavin Dairy in Sholinganallur. The trip will start at 9 30 am from Aavin Dairy. The trips will be run seven days a week and on an hourly basis. This is open to non-IT employees also.

Talking about the initiative, historian V Sriram says, "In all the hype about the IT expressway, we have forgotten that OMR has been a knowledge centre of Chennai almost since the time of Independence. It has been a home to many low-profile centres. It also boasts of centuries-old history in some of the villages that it connects, all of which are now parts of Chennai."

Marvelling at all the Madras Day initiatives, Pankaj R, who has moved to Chennai from Allahabad, says, "I came to the city three months back and didn't have the time to explore the city. My office is on the stretch and I still haven't got the chance to understand the relevance of this stretch. It is a good opportunity for me to know the city better."

The bus will be operational for one month, from August 24 onwards.
